FOREWORD

While researching and compiling this 1980 edition we noticed a considerable amount of new store openings and several acquisitions which affect the dominance of many market areas. And, as usual you'll find this directory to be as complete and up-to-date as possible. This year we developed an entirely new section of catalog coordinators and catalog showroom operators and also incorporated several new features which require some explanation, here are a few. . . .

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW

Kwik-Index—Lists the top 50 discount department store companies, ranked by total discount department store sales. Also indicates headquarter location and directory page number. Sales volumes were obtained from published annual reports, where available, or estimated by the company or ourselves.

Calendar—Chronologically lists major trade shows pertaining to the discount department store industry. Cites dates, name of show, location and telephone number of organizer.

Industry Profile—Graphically illustrates the number of stores, the number of chain and independent companies over a 10 year period, the number of stores broken down by store size and the percentage of sales by merchandise category. All information was obtained from our Directory of Discount Department Stores and Discount Store News.

Financial Profile—Detailed financial analysis of the leading public discount department store companies over the last five years, including company name, location, latest fiscal year ending, total company sales and per cent of increase over previous year, sales rank, total company net profit, per cent of net profit to sales and number of discount department stores. All sales do not include leased department sales or leased department income unless otherwise noted. Sales and net profits amounts were obtained from published annual reports and 10-K Forms or estimated by Discount Store News.

Discount Store Listings—Companies and branch stores are arranged alpha-geographically by state, with multiple listings in one city ordered strictly alphabetically. Headquarter listings which are indicated by a star in the right-hand column contains the headquarters' address, telephone number, the total number of stores operated, a complete list of store locations, which departments are company-operated and leased, a company profile where available, a complete list of executives, administrators, merchandisers and buyers, and the leased departments operators. Branch listings are indicated by a symbol in the right-hand column and contain the address and telephone number, the size of the store, which company the branch is operated by, the store manager or appropriate company executive and lessees when different from listing at headquarters.

Company Profile—Profiles have been developed for each major company. They contain an S.I.C. (Standard Industrial Classification) Number. The Department of Commerce does not provide an S.I.C. Number for several prominent retailing industries. The Discount Department Stores have not been recognized by the Department of Commerce through their S.I.C. program. We have assigned the S.I.C. Number 53 21 as being the closest identification in the series that are provided by the Federal Government. When the Department of Commerce decides to furnish an S.I.C. Number for this industry, we shall alter our numbering to conform with the Federal requirements. The Company Profiles also contain the annual sales (including leased departments), the total square footage (or selling square footage), the sales per square foot (or selling square foot), ownership, exchanges traded (AS—American, B—Boston, C—Cincinnati, I—Intermountain, M—Midwest, Mc—Montreal, NY—New York, P—Pacific, Ph—Philadelphia, Sc—Spokane, Tc—Toronto and Vc—Vancouver), stock exchange symbol (NASDAQ symbol when traded over-the-counter) and sources (Annual Reports, 10-Ks, DSN—Discount Store News and BGI—Business Guides Inc.). Company Profiles should be considered a measure rather than a complete analysis of a corporation's productivity. Estimated sales are derived from questionnaires or Discount Store News. Many estimated sales are reflections of corporations which are privately-held and/or nonreporting subsidiaries of public corporations.

Leased Department Listings—A strictly alphabetical compilation of leased department operators. In the left-hand column the departments supplied is listed, also contained is a complete list of executive and buying personnel, the number of leased departments, what companies and what locations the departments are leased in.

Catalog Showroom Listings—An alpha-geographically arranged section of catalog coordinators and catalog showrooms. A catalog coordinator, which is indicated by a dagger in the left-hand column, lists the name of the company, the address and telephone, the name and location of the companies serviced, the time(s) of year the catalog is published and a complete list of executives and buyers. There are both group and independent catalog coordinators, the group coordinator publishes a catalog for members and/or himself, the independent coordinator publishes a catalog only for himself. The showroom listings contain the name, address, telephone, number of units operated, branch showroom locations, the coordinator, the executives and buyers.

1980 Statistics—481 companies (303 chain headquarters and buying offices, 178 single store operations) operating 7,686 stores. Of these

Do you want to be InsideRetailing...

You can be an insider, or an outsider. An insider sees retail moves close up... knows what is happening in department stores... and why. An outsider can only guess.

If you service or sell the retail industry, you should not only know what's happening, but why. Sure, you read more than you have time for. But reading the news does not disclose the inner strategies. When Sears opened a new store in Kansas City, to the outsider it was just another store. The insider knew it marked a prototype of a new fashion strategy by which Sears hoped to transform its image.

And why should the nation's #1 retailer want to change its format? To avoid being painted into a corner as a blue-collar store with a continually aging customer base.

Readers of Inside Retailing know all about that because the shifts were explained for the past two years. Not by Sears. Not by the Wall Street Journal. But by us.

You can have Inside Retailing for $79 per year. Every other Monday your desk will contain a personal copy. Submit a check for a year's subscription. No billing, please. We hope to hear from you today, so we can start immediately to provide you with this important information.

Submit your
for $79.00,
or call us for a free sample copy.
